Data protection of confidential information

When you download information which has been password protected on the EGfL you are agreeing to take responsibility for what happens to that information next and its security.

In short: never share your user account details, always log out, never leave personal data unattended and use secure equipment (ie secure encrypted devices)

If you pass that information on to appropriate other people you must do so via secure systems – eg Egress or S2S.

When downloading information to shared or otherwise insecure computers and other devices be aware that it will remain in your download folder and may be liable to inappropriate access.

Ensure you are not making the information open to others as it may put individuals and organisations at risk.
