

A conference to celebrate best practice in Ealing and to identify how we can promote future success in reading for learners across the age and ability range.

Thursday 19 October, 9am-315pm

£100 per delegate

@ Trailfinders W13 ODD

READING: WHAT NEXT?

Following the very successful reading conference in 2016, the Ealing School Effectiveness team is organising a conference to explore successful practice in Ealing Schools.

The focus of the conference will be reading to succeed, promoting a love of reading through the development of key skills:

- Building vocabulary
- Embedding strategies to support comprehension
- Reading at greater depth

The conference is aimed at school leaders, literacy leads and English teachers.

It will provide opportunities for each school to reflect on current practice and identify their own future priorities for the development of reading.

Places are limited so book now to avoid disappointment by visiting www.ealingcpd.org.uk as our 2016 conference was highly over-subscribed.

The conference is aimed at school leaders, literacy leads and English teachers.

It will provide opportunities for each school to reflect on current practice and identify their own future priorities for the development of reading.

We have planned a series of engaging presentations from schools sharing examples of good practice, followed by table exercises to give all delegates opportunities for discussion and exploration of ideas

The conference will also provide an opportunity to talk to publishers and view a range of resources, through the vibrant 'market place'.

We are very fortunate that Clr Binda Rai, Ealing Council Cabinet Member for Children and Young People, has agreed to open the conference and Jonathan Douglas, Director of the National Literacy Trust, will close the day and present awards to a number of schools who have successfully achieved the Ealing Reading Quality Mark.

www.ealing.gov.uk

